Brief job description:

The Center for ESG Research (www.esgnthu.org) is hiring a number of student researchers.

Theme 1: Environmental sustainability

You will be asked to contribute to our research in one or more of the following areas: governance of private code of conduct; environmental compliance of small businesses; role of civil society organizations in influencing firms' behavior and government policies; implementation of environmental laws and regulations in different localities. We are particularly interested in how these issues are manifested across different communities, societies, or countries.

Theme 2: Labor issues and regional development in the time of crisis

Under the current Covid-19 pandemic, and a prolonged crisis of uneven development, this theme seeks to excavate labor issues in the IC manufacturing sector, especially the condition of migrant workers, and to investigate the spaces that were 'left behind' in economic development.

As a student researcher, you are expected to carry out a number of research activities, such as:

- Conduct a literature review of relevant scholarly findings and debates.
- Collect, manipulate, and analyze publicly available datasets.
- Identify and conduct in-depth case studies.
- Conduct face-to-face interviews with relevant actors.
- Design and conduct surveys.

You will also be given a chance to shape research according to your individual interest in areas relevant to the above themes.

If you are interested, please send your cover letter and résumé or CV to Professor Kyoung Shin (shin@mx.nthu.edu.tw), Professor Ker-hsuan Chien (chienkh@mx.nthu.edu.tw) and Professor Chan-Yuan Wong (wcy@mx.nthu.edu.tw). The short-listed candidates will be invited for an online interview.
